New Kind of Medical Practitioner

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A new kind of medical practitioner will be trained at the University of Colorado Medical School in an attempt to meet an impending crisis in health care for children.

The work will have a range broader than a nurse's but narrower than a doctor's. The workers will meet the medical needs of children who don't require special attention or care for serious ailments.

This new category of medicine—it doesn't have a formal name yet—is the brainchild of Dr. Henry K. Silver of the medical school's department of pediatrics.

Silver said vast numbers of children already are "receiving grossly inadequate total health care." And, he said, "It's going to get much worse."

He said estimates place the child population of the United States at 76 million by 1980. To provide adequate health care for these children an additional 100,000 pediatricians need to be trained by then, he said.

The quota cannot be met, even allowing for a drastic increase in the present rate of fewer than 1,000 pediatricians entering practice each year.

Silver's plan will begin to become a reality when the first group of trainees starts classes next summer.

DESIGNED FOR DANCING, these quick-change gowns were seen at the Denver, Colo., wedding of Annette Folz and Edward Iacino. Wanting to dance comfortably at her own wedding, Annette devised this "strip act" to surprise guests at the reception. She came up with the idea that miniskirts made of the same material could be concealed under the longer, more formal skirts she and her bridesmaids would be wearing until the ceremony was over. Here, as the reception gets under way, the girls help each other out of the wrap-around skirts and presto, they're ready to have a ball.

HELEN HELP US!

WRONG PERSON—AGAIN!

Dear Helen: I'm the mother of "Three Grown Children" who told of their father having an affair with "Marilyn." They didn't write that letter. Marilyn did, to justify herself because she feels guilty for finding a young man and throwing over my husband. Naturally she wants me to take him back, so she won't be blamed. And she wants everyone to see it was all my fault because I was a cold wife.

Here's the real story: He spent his time and money on Marilyn, leaving his loving wife at home alone. The letter said Marilyn had been more of a real wife than the wife. My children wouldn't say that! They know how I suffered.

Now I have found out that there were at least two other women. Confronted with facts, my husband says he'll reform. He repeats he has always loved me and the new practitioner will be ready to see patients after five years of post-high school study, compared with 11 years to put a pediatrician into practice and nine years for a general practitioner.

"This is not a substitute for a doctor, but entails more actual responsibility than a nurse or some form of medical technician," he explained.

The training period can be shorter, he said, because the courses will be focused mainly on the needs of children. This abbreviated training should make the program attractive to those—such as women who want a medical career along with marriage and family—who don't want to spend the time required to become a doctor, Silver said.

"This opens the health profession to people who might have had to select another area of study," Silver said. The pay, he said, is expected to start at $10,000 to $12,000 with increases up to $15,000.

The training would include two years of undergraduate study, two years at the medical school in basic sciences and clinical experience, and a one-year internship. Those completing the course would be awarded bachelor's degrees.

These new workers—they may be called "child care associates" or some similar name—would undergo examinations and certification by the Colorado State Board of Medical Examiners before starting practice.

Charges Foe Using Free Postage

ROGERS, Ark. (AP)—Hardy Croxton of Rogers, the Democratic nominee for Congress from the 3rd District, says the Republican incumbent, John Paul Hammerschmidt, has sent out 168,000 personal campaign folders free of postage.

"Several citizens have advised me that they are bringing this to the attention of the postmaster general in order that he may collect this cost of approximately $10,000 to the Post Office Department," Croxton said.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS News with its new semimonthly "60 minutes" has worked out a fine, flexible format with the approximate relationship to its nightly news programs that a magazine has to a daily newspaper.

The program can dip into a number of areas during the hour—and did on Tuesday night.

There was a feature on the government's development of chemical and biological agents as weapons of war; a biting musical number from an antilestablishment satire poking fun at Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox; a Mike Wallace interview with Richard M. Nixon with the Republican candidate answering without heat some very blunt questions; a short but disenchanted report by the principals

Graham Hill and wife—on the life of a racing car driver and his family.

The longest presentation concerned chemical warfare. It was illustrated by film showing tests of lethal nerve gases and of others, called "incapacitants" that are not deadly but effective in knocking out people. There were assurances by Pentagon experts that the nation will never instigate warfare with lethal chemicals, but must develop them for possible retaliation or, if necessary, defense.

Nixon, interviewed in his New York apartment, discussed and defended his career in answer to questions that ranged from the handling of his press relations to whether he felt he had in the past committed "political excesses."

He offered the opinion that "history will be kinder to Lyndon Johnson than his contemporaries," and said he believed Johnson withdrew for the sake of the nation.

Hubert H. Humphrey and perhaps George C. Wallace will receive similar treatment from "60 minutes" within the next few weeks.

Biological warfare—plague, botulism and anthrax—will be studied in the next edition.

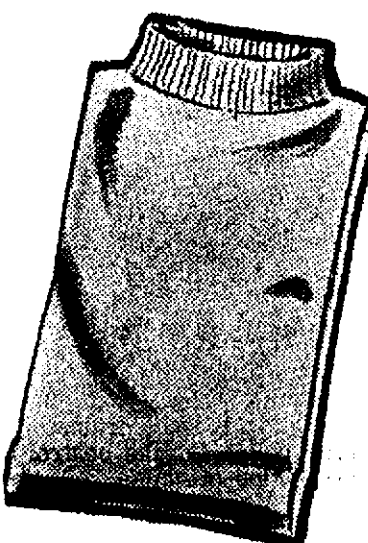

NBC this season has placed Jerry Lewis' hour of fun and frolic at the head of its Tuesday night schedule, a perfect spot for a show that has special appeal for the younger members of the television audience.

Lewis, as usual, was on camera practically all the time and made a lot of funny faces and got dressed up in funny clothes. He even took part in the opening production number with the dancers.

There is an annoying tendency to extend the sketches far beyond the point at which the joke has been hammered into place.

One started out as a funny, satirical bit—the sudden appearance of the Man from God in the kitchen when the husband started to argue with his wife about his stale sandwiches.

Wallace Turns British Actor Hailed by Many as a Symbol of Modern Youth

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer
SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — George C. Wallace has a knack of turning to his own use the heckling that has become a fixture of the 1968 presidential campaign.

"Well, my goodness," said Wallace after a particularly noisy rally on the Boston Common Tuesday, "I ought to know how to handle those folks, I've put up with them for 3 1/2 years."

Between paragraphs in his speech, Wallace, aided by powerful sound equipment, exchanged taunts with a chanting group of dissenters interspersed among the largest crowd he has drawn so far in his campaign.

"Why don't you hire the hall tomorrow and see how many folks you can get here?" gibed Wallace early in his speech, obviously pleased with the vast sea of faces spread before him.

Police estimates of the crowd ranged as high as 20,000, but in the imprecise art of guessing crowd sizes, other opinions went from 40,000 to Wallace's own judgment of 75,000.

The hecklers were in no way violent, but did distract Wallace with their cries of "Go home!" and "Peace now!"

The majority of the crowd did not react vocally to Wallace's pledges to end the busing of school children, repeal the open housing law, restore law and order to the streets and conclude the Vietnam war militarily.

Of those who responded emotionally, about half seemed to be for Wallace and half against.

To those who were against, Wallace said: "You're the sort of people the folks of this country are sick and tired of."

After the rally, he said in an interview: "They don't hurt me, they help me. When the public sees them in action the public is on my side."

Wallace appeared in Boston after speeches at an airport and an aircraft engine plant in Stratford, Conn., and a visit in Boston Harbor aboard the historic frigate, USS Constitution.

"Tamerlane and Other Poems" was Edgar Allan Poe's first published volume. He published it anonymously, at his own expense, in Boston in 1827.

HHH Lashes Foe's Crime Program

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey today attacked Richard M. Nixon's anticrime recommendations calling for nationwide town hall conferences as sounding "like either a call for the vigilantes or for more talk about crime."

American doesn't need either one," the Democratic presidential nominee said. "The time for talking is over—we need action."

The vice president turned to the crime issue in a speech prepared for the National Association of Retail Druggists, charging that both Nixon and third party nominee George C. Wallace have done more talking about crime than proposing solutions.

Humphrey said that Nixon "forgets in his statement to talk about the additional resources urgently needed by state and local police," adding that "in present circumstances, these additional resources must come from the federal government."

Humphrey plans to make the law and order issue the subject of his second nationally televised address of the campaign on Saturday night.

As he has done before, Humphrey stressed the need to upgrade the equipment and training of local police forces, saying, "To wage war on crime in our modern society, we need professional people whose training combines the highest standards and the best interdisciplinary training in crime prevention, crime control and the protection of human rights."

He said that if, as seems likely, the present Congress fails to pass legislation to require registration and licensing of firearms, "the next Congress must do so."

"But where does Mr. Nixon stand on this important question?" he asked. "He says he has spoken out on 167 major issues. Gun control is evidently not among them."

Humphrey said that Nixon's advisers forgot to tell him that his proposals for a "cabinet-level council" to coordinate federal policy on the control and prevention of crime, a National Coordinating Center and a National Academy of Law Enforcement—were already part of the federal government's programs to fight crime.

After his Boston speech, Humphrey flies to New York where tonight he will address the annual dinner of the state's Liberal party, which is backing him.

He plans to spend the remainder of the week in the New York area, except for a Friday trip to Cincinnati for two speeches.

On Tuesday, the vice president told the United Press International editors and publishers conference that, as president "I shall have a new administration with a new team that will make its own evaluations of where we are, what is in our national interest and where we should go."

And he called for annual summit meetings between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Then, the vice president flew to the central New York Democratic stronghold of Utica, where more than 6,000 people inside the Memorial Auditorium, and another 3,000 outside, heard him say that the nation's problems can only be solved by the "liberal Democratic faith" that sustained Presidents Harry S. Truman, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

On the return flight to Washington, Humphrey aides supplied reporters with the latest Sindinger poll, showing that Nixon's lead over Humphrey has dropped from nine per cent to 3.9 per cent in the past two weeks.

ment in Parade Magazine concerning the flourishing of crime in Arkansas.

A statement in the Sunday edition of the magazine says "Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, New Jersey, Ohio and Arkansas are states in which crime flourishes because of crooked politicians, police payoffs and protection from the higher-ups."

The governor said it was "very possible" the report is dated. He did not elaborate on a statement that there had been strong indications that the Mafia had attempted to move into legitimate business in Arkansas.

"There have been other instances of definitely identifiable Mafia people coming in and out of Hot Springs on a regular basis," he said. "I have not had any reports of Mafia visits lately."

cent in August.

The actual number of unemployed declined 160,000 to 2.6 million last month, but the Labor Department's method of adjusting the jobless rate for seasonal factors resulted in the small increase.

Total employment dropped from 77.4 million in August to 75.9 million in September, but again seasonal adjustment resulted in a small statistical increase.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said manufacturing employment was unchanged in September at 19.8 million. Small employment increases in the clothing, transportation equipment and electrical equipment industries were offset by declines in most other manufacturing, the bureau said.

Compared with a year earlier, total nonfarm payroll employment at 68.5 million last month was up 2.3 million.

"The real job growth over the year was 2.1 million, since there were widespread labor disputes," the bureau said.

Most of the increase in unemployment last month was among women. Their jobless rate edged up from 3.7 to 3.9 per cent last month, the bureau said.

Acting Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson said the officer, Pvt. David A. Roberts, was riding his motorcycle to the scene of an accident when he saw a truck stopped in 14th street blowing its horn at a man crossing in front of it.

When he reached the curb, Wilson said, Roberts asked him to stop but he kept walking. The patrolman then parked his motorcycle and walked up to the man, the acting chief said, telling him "Sir, I want to talk to you."

At that point, Wilson related, the man struck Roberts in the shoulder, still saying nothing, then pummeled the officer's face and mouth. Roberts, feeling he was losing consciousness, drew his pistol and fired once, the acting chief said.

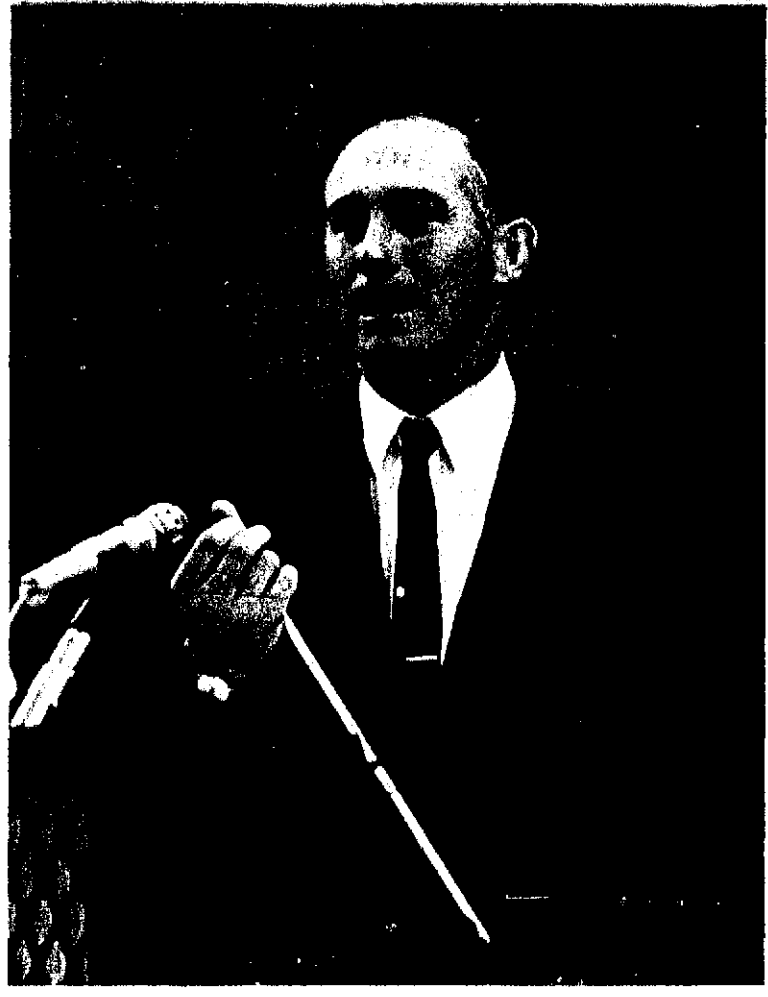

One eyewitness, Interior Department Clerk Leroy Marshall, told the Washington Post that after Roberts had parked his cycle, he grabbed the man by the arm.

The man wrenched his arm away, slapping Roberts across the face in the process, Marshall said, and the officer pushed him back, stepped backwards himself, bent to one knee and fired.

Several other eyewitnesses agreed with Marshall, but still others said that the man struck Roberts down and was "getting the better of him" when the policeman fired from a crouching or prone position.

Tuesday night's trouble started after 60 to 75 persons drawn together by word of the shooting held an impromptu protest meeting in front of the New School for Afro-American Thought, two blocks from the shooting scene.

GUN CONTROL from Page One to meet the appeals of President Johnson for tightened gun controls but does not include his request to require registration of all firearms and the licensing of owners.

The assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in early June touched off a renewed drive for the legislation after it had been stymied for years by the opposition of the National Rifle Association and other groups.

A section of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act passed in June prohibited interstate mail order sales of pistols and their over-the-counter sale to nonresidents of a state.

But an effort then to include shotguns and rifles was rejected.

The bill agreed on by the conferees has these principal provisions:

—Interstate sales of all firearms and ammunition by mail would be prohibited, except among federally licensed manufacturers, importers, dealers and collectors.

—Over-the-counter sales of firearms to nonresidents of a state would be banned, except that a person could purchase a rifle or shotgun, but not a handgun, in an adjoining state if this is legal under the laws of both states.

—In such out-of-state purchases, the buyer would have to file an affidavit of eligibility and, to allow time for a police check, the seller could not make delivery for seven days.

—On mail order sales within a state, this affidavit and waiting-period procedure also would apply.

—Sales of handguns and handgun ammunition would be prohibited to persons under 21 years of age, and sales of rifles and shotguns and ammunition for them would be banned to persons under 18.

—Imports of all surplus military firearms would be prohibited effective immediately. The rest of the bill would take effect Dec. 16.

—For carrying a firearm while committing a federal felony, a person would be subject to an additional penalty of one to 10 years for a first offense and 5 to 25 years for a second offense. These penalties, however, could run concurrently with the sentence for the crime itself.

—Sales of firearms to mental incompetents, drug addicts, felons, fugitives and persons under indictment would be prohibited.

—Destructive devices such as bombs, grenades, antitank guns and bazookas would be brought under the 1934 National Firearms Act, which requires federal registration of sawed-off shotguns, machineguns and other gangster-type weapons.

Violations of the new law would be subject to penalties of up to five years' imprisonment or a $5,000 fine, or both.

The Senate-House conferees modified a House provision to exempt the National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice from the terms of the legislation.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House conferees, had contended that this would have the effect of exempting the closely affiliated National Rifle Association and its nearly one million members.

Says Youth Rejected by Democrats

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard M. Nixon held out a Republican welcome to the young Tuesday, saying the Democratic party has rejected youth.

Before flying to California Tuesday night, Nixon addressed a packed house in the 8,500-seat Minneapolis Auditorium in the adopted home state of his Democratic rival for the presidency, Hubert H. Humphrey.

The campaign crowd was overwhelmingly friendly but included a small and vocal group of "we want peace" chanters. They interrupted Nixon several times but quickly were drowned out by cries of "We Want Nixon."

One young man, who left the hall under his own steam at the request of police, stopped the GOP candidate at the outset by announcing from the balcony, over a battery-powered megaphone, that "I have questions I want to put to you."

Many of the Nixon partisans were young people, too, and the campaigner had a special word for them.

He said Minnesota's Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy deserved much of the credit for their interest in politics and, referring to McCarthy's defeat for the Democratic presidential nomination, added: "Now that you've been rejected by the other party, we'll welcome you in ours."

With three rallies scheduled today in California, Nixon begins intensive concentration on the big-vote states—declaring he's not taking victory for granted.

In a speech prepared for a campaign meeting at Santa Monica, Nixon proposed a "Children's antiobscenity act" that would make it a federal criminal offense to knowingly mail obscene matter to those under 16.

"The time has come for new legislation to crack down on the purveyors of filth who peddle the matter to our young," Nixon said.

Other informed sources said several high ranking Vietnamese marine officers—majors and colonels—had already been arrested. A source close to marine commandant, Lt. Gen. Le Nguyen Khang, said he knew of no such arrests.

Intelligence sources said there had been "some troop movements in the Mekong Delta" Tuesday and that "proper counter-movements" had been taken with other troops.

There apparently was no actual confrontation of troops and no shooting, these informants said.

A source in Thieu's office said Thieu was in the palace tonight. This source said he knew nothing about a coup attempt.

The government source who told of the coup said details still were fuzzy and that it was not yet known who was behind it or how widespread it was. From all indications, it did not get far.

none of the others—didn't want to marry them because "they weren't nice girls." Was he any better? Or considerably worse? The writer asked you to persuade the wife to "take half a loaf" and accept her husband back, so that she can continue with her country club and posh living. I'm glad you put up an argument.

Even though my husband begs me to let him make it up to me and prove his love, I'm not having any, thank you. I now neither admire nor respect him and I'm a lot younger than he is. So I shall make a new life of my own. And I hope Marilyn's conscience never quits! — MOTHER OF THREE GROWN CHILDREN

Dear Mother: Any similarity between you and the real "Mother of Three Grown Children" is purely coincidental. You two come from different parts of the country. Moreover, I changed the letter from "T.G.C." so much that the principals wouldn't recognize themselves, this to avoid embarrassment at home.

Now for YOUR problem. If you're determined to toss a third of your life down the drain, I can't stop you. But I can't believe a "loving wife" would be so sure. Perhaps "Marilyn" offered the excuse you've been looking for—a way out, minus guilt, for the "poor wronged little wife." — H

Dear Helen: I often wonder why, when people talk of immorality, we assume "sex". There are so many other things which are far more immoral. Like cruelty, dishonesty, meanness. — SOL

Dear Sol: Good question. Everyone should ask it. Perhaps then we'd see that illicit sex usually isn't as immoral as it is unwise, hurtful, and in the long run, often sad. Only when it is mixed up with those others—cruelty, dishonesty, meanness—can sex be called "immoral." — H

Dear Helen: Whyohwhy, again. My head grows bald. The hair in my ears increases. Also my eyebrows grow bushy. Why didn't nature let hair keep growing where it is supposed to grow? — SENIOR SIR

Dear Sir: Some will say it's because you wear a hat on your head and not over your ears, but I prefer to think Nature is a tricky old dame who enjoys scrambling up our features. Why else would she turn a man's hair gray while his moustache stays black? — H

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS News with its new semimonthly "60 minutes" has worked out a fine, flexible format with the approximate relationship to its nightly news programs that a magazine has to a daily newspaper.

The program can dip into a number of areas during the hour—and did on Tuesday night.

There was a feature on the government's development of chemical and biological agents as weapons of war; a biting musical number from an anti-establishment satire poking fun at Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox; a

Mike Wallace interview with Richard M. Nixon with the Republican candidate answering without heat some very blunt questions; a short but disenchanted report by the principals—Graham Hill and wife—on the life of a racing car driver and his family.

The longest presentation concerned chemical warfare. It was illustrated by film showing tests of lethal nerve gases and of others, called "incapacitators" that are not deadly but effective in knocking out people. There were assurances by Pentagon experts that the nation will never instigate warfare with lethal chemicals, but must develop them for possible retaliation or, if necessary, defense.

Nixon, interviewed in his New

York apartment, discussed and defended his career in answer to questions that ranged from the handling of his press relations to whether he felt he had in the past committed "political excesses."

He offered the opinion that "history will be kinder to Lyndon Johnson than his contemporaries," and said he believed Johnson withdrew for the sake of the nation.

Hubert H. Humphrey and perhaps George C. Wallace will receive similar treatment from "60 minutes" within the next few weeks.

Biological warfare—plague, botulism and anthrax—will be studied in the next edition.

NBC this season has placed Jerry Lewis' hour of fun and frolic at the head of its Tuesday night schedule, a perfect spot for a show that has special appeal for the younger members of the television audience.

Lewis, as usual, was on camera practically all the time and made a lot of funny faces and got dressed up in funny clothes. He even took part in the opening production number with the dancers.

There is an annoying tendency to extend the sketches far beyond the point at which the joke has been hammered into place.

One started out as a funny, satirical bit—the sudden appearance of the Man from God in the kitchen when the husband started to argue with his wife about his stale sandwiches.

Hogs' Powell Lineman of the Week

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Arkansas' middle linebacker Cliff Powell figures he isn't doing his job if he isn't in on every play. He didn't miss many last Saturday night.

The 205-pound Powell roamed far and wide in helping hold Texas Christian's powerful running game to but a meager four yards in the second half of a come-from-behind 17-7 Razorback victory.

The performance earned Powell the Associated Press Southwest Conference Lineman-of-the-week honor from a panel of football experts.

Jerry Levas of Southern Methodist—technically an end—got the back-of-the-week award for his sizzling three touchdown performance against North Carolina State in a 35-14 victory.

The AP panel gave him the back award because Levas' performance came catching and running with the football.

The muscular Powell said "if I'm not in on a play, I feel like I'm not doing my job."

Statistics show Powell made seven unassisted tackles and gave assists.

This prompted Coach Frank Broyles to say: "He has made some big plays for us this year and his play in this game was outstanding. He was a big factor in the great showing of our defense in the second half."

Defensive coach Charles Coffey said "He'll hit you and you know you've been hit."

Powell is free to move to the ball as middle linebacker in the 4-3 pro type defense Arkansas uses this year—except on obvious passing downs.

"I'd much rather be free at linebacker," he said. "The outside linebackers have to stay at home to make sure the play doesn't come their way."

Powell said he wasn't overally satisfied with his game against TCU.

"I got blocked too much. I don't like to get blocked at all. But I got blocked more by them than I did the two previous games. They were quicker than the linemen I had seen earlier."

Powell and his fellow Razorbacks held TCU's star running backs Ross Montgomery and Norman Bulacha to a total of 70 yards.

"We knew those two were going to be tough," he said. "When they came at you, all you could think of was not to miss them. I guess I was a little conscious of trying to hit them harder than the average."

Porkers Are Picked Over Baylor

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — A football coach doesn't believe in turning the other cheek... particularly if his name happens to be Woody Hayes.

The Ohio State pilot has been laying for Purdue ever since his Buckeyes took a 41-6 thrashing from the Boilermakers last fall.

Saturday at Columbus, Hayes gets his rematch in a game that could swing the Big Ten championship to the survivor.

Purdue goes in with an unblemished record and the top spot in the national rankings. But the brawny Bucks are unbeaten, too, and Hayes has enough talent at his disposal to avenge Ohio's darkest day in 1967.

"We're betting he'll do just that... despite Leroy Keyes."

Last week's picks came out on top in 47 of 56 games, giving this corner a season mark of 140-37-7... a .761 pace.

This is the way some of the coming weekend's other key pairings look from here:

Penn State over UCLA: The Bruins' offensive shortcomings were evident in last week's loss to Syracuse. Penn State's rugged defense should compound the problem.

Mississippi over Georgia: The Rebs are flexing their muscles after knocking off Alabama for the first time since 1910.

Kansas over Nebraska: One vote for Jayhawk quarterback Bob Douglas in this Big Eight archrivalry.

Oklahoma over Texas: The Sooners have a score to settle too... Texas handed them their only regular season setback in 1967.

Michigan State over Michigan: Duffy Daugherty has something going again at East Lansing.

Texas A&M over Texas Tech: The Aggies are going to make plenty of late trouble in the Southwest Conference.

Miami, Fla., over Louisiana State: Miami's Ted Hendricks is big enough to put the Tigers in his tank.

Among the others:

EAST—Syracuse over Pittsburgh; Dartmouth over Princeton; Cornell over Penn; Harvard over Columbia; Holy Cross over Colgate; Buffalo over Delaware; Yale over Brown; Boston College over Villanova; California over Army.

SOUTH—Alabama over Vanderbilt; Auburn over Clemson; Duke over Virginia; Florida over Tulane; Tennessee over Georgia Tech; Oregon State over Kentucky; Tulsa over Louisville; North Carolina over Memphis State; Southern Mississippi over Mississippi State; North Carolina State over South Carolina.

MIDWEST—Air Force over Navy at Chicago; Colorado over Missouri; Minnesota over Illinois; Indiana over Iowa; Kansas State over Iowa State; Notre Dame over Northwestern; Utah State over Wisconsin.

SOUTHWEST—Arkansas over Baylor; Houston over Oklahoma State; Texas Christian over Southern Methodist.

Far West—Southern California over Stanford; Wyoming over Brigham Young; Arizona State over Washington State; Washington over Oregon.

champion, is at 71 along with George McKeown. Fleming has a two-shot lead over Hogan Rountree of Bella Vista in the seniors division.

The 54-hole tournament winds up Thursday. The first 36 holes will decide the senior champion. The final 36 holes will determine the six qualifiers for the club professional championship at Scottsdale, Ariz.

About $6,000 is at stake in the tournament which is open to players from Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

McLain and Wilson May Be Starters

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Mayo Smith, manager of the Detroit Tigers, arrived at Busch Memorial Stadium for today's sixth game of the World Series, he knew who his starting pitcher would be. And he was the only one.

Smith was due to announce his starter when the Tigers arrive at the park and it was to be one of three hurlers—either 31-game winner Denny McLain, Earl Wilson or Joe Sparta.

"I haven't made up my mind," said Smith after the Tigers worked out in Detroit Tuesday. "But even if I make up my mind, I won't announce it until after I get to the park."

McLain, who was shelled in his first two Series starts, had a cortisone shot Monday to treat his inflamed right shoulder and pronounced himself ready after warming up during the workout.

"It feels real good. I haven't been able to do this for two months," he said after throwing hard for 13 minutes.

Wilson, the loser in game No. 3, is nursing a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg. He also worked out Tuesday and reported some improvement.

Sparta, hit hard in relief in the fourth game, has spent much of the season in Manager Smith's doghouse.

"Mayo told me earlier if someone got hurt, I would be the fourth pitcher," Sparta said during the workout. "But he hasn't said anything."

The Tigers left the firm imprint of their backs on the wall by prolonging the Series with a 5-3 victory in the fifth game. Now they face another problem, even if they win today's sixth game.

In the wings for the Cardinals is the imposing figure of Bob Gibson, the ace right-hander who already has beaten them twice and has tied a Series record with seven consecutive victories and set another with a 17-strikeout performance in the opener.

"I don't want to pitch anymore," said Gibson, obviously hoping the Cardinals don't need a seventh game to clinch their second consecutive world championship.

Both teams went into the sixth game with two regulars in prolonged slumps which bordered on Series records. Bill Freehan, Detroit's slugging catcher, and Dal Maxvill, the Cardinals' smooth-fielding shortstop, are both 0-for-16 and closing in on the 0-for-21 frustration record set by Gil Hodges with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1952.

Lou Brock of the Cardinals has been the major thorn in the side of the Tigers. He is hitting .524 with 11 hits in 21 at bats, including two homers. He has stolen a record-tying seven bases and pledged to go for No. 8 if he gets an opportunity.

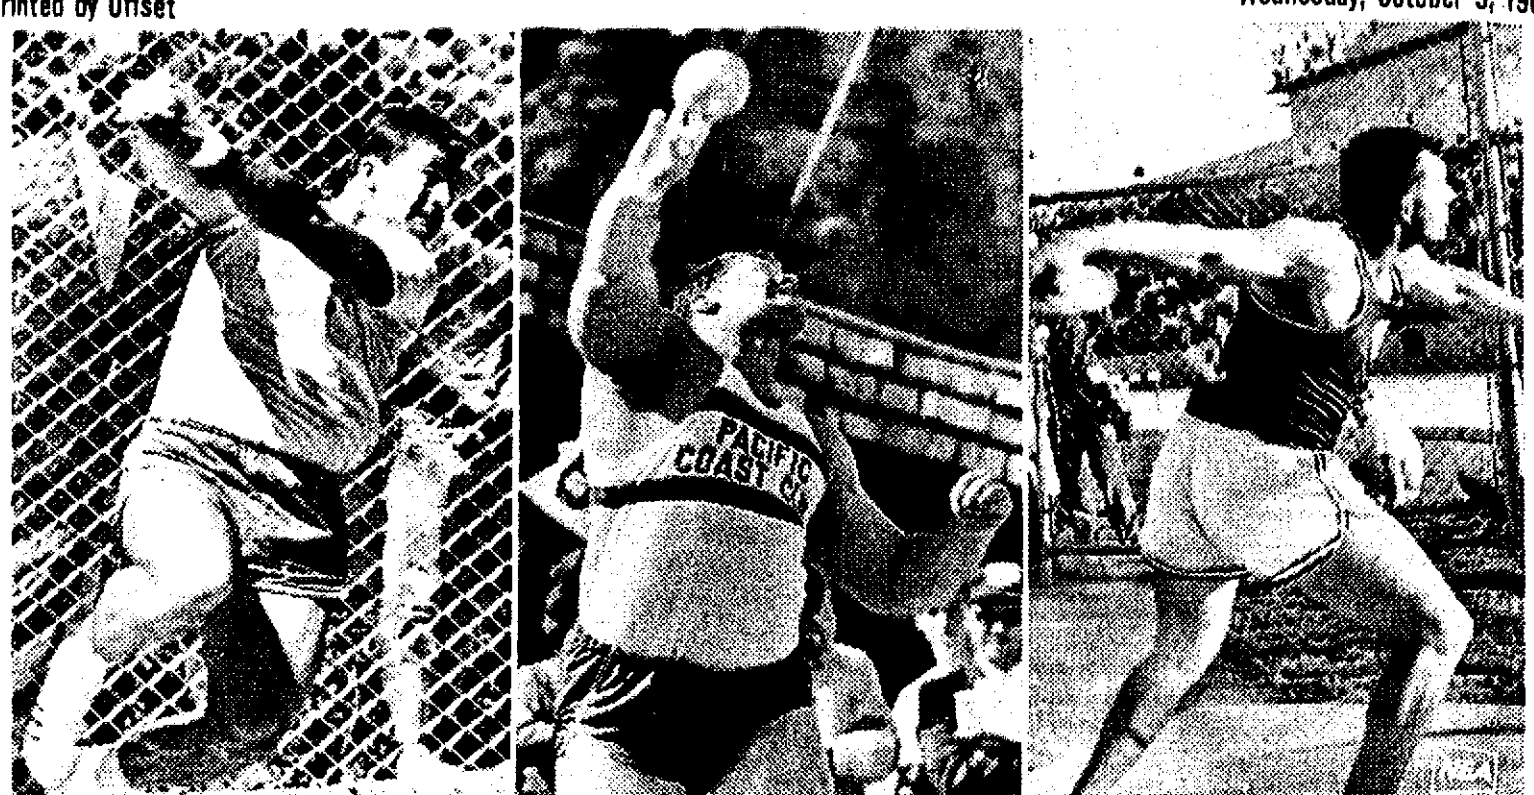

The Series was following the pattern set in 1907 when St. Louis and Boston split the first two games and then the Cards took two straight, leaving the Red Sox on the brink of elimination.

Boston bounced back to win the fifth and sixth games but lost the seventh and the Series when Gibson beat them for the third time.

Bobcats Play Washington on Saturday

By RALPH ROUTON
Star Sports Writer

Now on the bottom side looking up, the Hope Bobcats try to get things moving once again this week against the hapless Texarkana Washington Lions in a meaningful 4-AA Western Division contest.

Although the Lions have yet to win a ball game, most of that is because they have failed to get the jump on any teams they have played. They gave unbeaten Arkadelphia a hard time before falling 20-0 to the Badgers' good passing attack, and it is their defense which is relatively inexperienced, that accounts for the rebuilding season.

Playing the game on Saturday night gives the Bobcats a possible extra day in pads to scrimmage, with the needed tapering off session given Friday to come. That extra day means even more as the Cats recover from the tough Malvern game, simply giving the injured more time.

Slotback Rodney Jones, who missed the game last Friday with a painfully bruised ankle, should be ready for Texarkana Washington, though his ankle still requires heavy taping. Mickey Allen limped to the sidelines late in the Malvern game, but it was only because the tape job on his injured knee had cut off circulation and caused him pain and trouble moving.

Senior defensive halfback James Rowe has the cast off his arm now, which was broken four days before the first game back in September. Although Rowe will not be ready for the game this weekend, he soon will be able to provide that senior leadership and extra depth in the defensive backfield as well as a possible kicking substitute for Ronny Brown.

The Bobcat pass receivers continue to improve, as they are able to come up with big plays every week. Every game from now on is a must-win, though, and everyone will have to keep improving. They even have a good reason in that the next two opponents after Texarkana Washington are Magnolia and Fairview, Nos. 2 and 3 in Class AA, respectively.

But the Bobcats can't afford to look ahead; they need this game to build their confidence back and repolish the winning attitude. It is really pretty easy for anyone to lose that burning fire to win, except for the outstanding few that get most of the honors anyway.

Don't count on Hope using much more of the shotgun offense except as an emergency, because the slot formation has a lot of possibilities with personnel such as the Bobcats have. The running game only managed 32 yards against Malvern, so the Leopards could maintain a stiff pass rush through most of the game.

So the rushing attack must assert itself against Texarkana Washington the successful passing game. It was through the air that the Bobcats moved the ball best against Malvern and Smackover, and Larry Massanelli has completed nearly 50 per cent of his attempts.

By the way, the Fairview game next week is Homecoming, and the HHS Homecoming Queen is Robyn Galloway, who will be honored with her court of nine maids at that game. With the traditional top effort at homecoming added to the top effort always given against Fairview, grounds could be laid for a possible upset. Last year, when Fairview went 11-1, the Cards could only outlast the Bobcats 27-19, after Hope had pulled within one point early in the fourth period.

Fairview has already beaten Texarkana Washington 33-0, as they held the Lions to minus yardage total offense. But even though the Lions are 0-4 on the year, the fact remains that they could win one any week. Magnolia, coming after Fairview on the Bobcats' slate, is presently breezing at 5-0 with only one divisional game between them and the 4-AA East championship.

All things concerned, it should be quite interesting once again to see how the metabolism of the Bobcats is affected by being 1-3-1, with three undefeated teams left on the schedule. The Cats can do it if they want it bad enough, and a little luck could even thrust them back into the thick of the Western Division race.

The Junior High Bobkittens, running in high gear with a 3-1 season mark, have an open date this week before matching forces with unbeaten Nashville next Thursday in Hammons Stadium. The Kittens have led at one time or another in all four of their games, twice coming back to win in the second half.

With the week off, Coach Gaylord Solomon is only working the squad out for about an hour a day, with at least two days of hard scrimmaging. Most of the Bobkittens' injuries are well healed, and they will be fired up against Nashville after losing to the Scrappers last year 6-0. After the Nashville contest, games with Magnolia and Fairview wrap up the Juniors' seven-game schedule.

Tarkington, Munson Catch Meredith

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Tarkington of New York and Bill Munson of Detroit have knocked Dallas' Don Meredith out of the lead as the National Football League's top passer.

Tarkington, who has completed 46 of 80 tosses for 803 yards and eight touchdowns, took over first in the standings based on percentage of completions, touchdowns, percentage of interceptions and average gain.

Munson was second with 43 of 63 for 669 yards and six touchdowns, while Meredith slipped to third with 52 of 78 for 740 yards and eight TDs.

Other leaders are Chicago's Gale Sayers, rushing (361 yards in 58 carries); Minnesota's Bill Brown, scoring (48 points on eight touchdowns); San Francisco's Clifton McNeil, pass receiving (22 for 317 yards); Washington's Mike Bragg, punting (19 for 46.6 average); Philadelphia's Alvin Haymond, punt returns (7 for 26.9 average); and Los Angeles' Ron Smith, kickoff returns (6 for 38.7 average).

Denver Rookie Named Player of the Week

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Second string rookie flanker Mike Haffner of Denver made his pass catching debut in the pros something to dream about.

The 25-year-old first year player from UCLA caught three straight passes—his first as a pro—for 15, 4 and 5 yards, the last for the Broncos' touchdown with about two minutes remaining for a 10-7 victory over Cincinnati Sunday.

Two other substitute receivers, Mark Smolinski and Curley Johnson of the New York Jets, also filled in admirably.

Smolinski, normally a reserve running back, shared tight and duties and caught three passes, including two for 14 and 18 yards in a touchdown drive that gave the Jets a 23-20 victory over San Diego.

Johnson caught three for 47 yards that led to an earlier field goal. He also punted six times for a 47.8 average.

Tall Russian Cagers May Turn Tables

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP)—"Man, they have some beanpoles, that's for sure," said Spencer Haywood, 6-foot-8 U.S. center from Detroit, as he watched the towering Russian basketball players in their red sweat suits, stroll aimlessly pass the American quarters in Olympic Village.

Sergei Kovalenko, the Soviet center, is 7-foot-2—a student with sandyish red hair, dangling arms and legs like a spider.

Vladimir Andreyev is 7-foot-11 and Alzhan Zharmukhametov is 6-9. Veterans Gennady Volnov and Jaak Lipso are each 6-6. The shortest man of the 12-member Soviet squad is 6-1, Yuri Selikhov.

Tallest man on the U.S. squad is Ken Spain of Houston, 6-9, followed by Haywood and Bill Hosket of Columbus, Ohio, each 6-8.

The United States has never lost an Olympic game, winning 66 straight, but this year they go into the tournament underdogs to the towering Reds.

"We are quicker than the Russians and shoot better but I doubt that we are physically as strong," said the U.S. head coach, Hank Iba of Oklahoma State. "We will have to outfox them."

Haywood is the youngest player ever to perform on a U.S. basketball squad. He is just 19, and the pros can hardly wait until he finishes college.

The rangy Negro, who sports a Lincolnian beard, played at Trinidad State Junior College before shifting to the University of Detroit, where he has two more years of eligibility.

Haywood was a member of the team that invaded Europe this summer, winning six games and losing four. The Americans lost two to the Russians and two to Yugoslavia.

"We didn't have Hosket and JoJo White (from the University of Kansas) with us then," Haywood said. "Also we were not organized."

In recent warmup games, the makeshift American Olympians defeated the pro New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association 65-64, lost to Cincinnati of the NBA 71-63 and whipped the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association 69-63.

Asked how the Russians might fare against a top U.S. pro outfit, Haywood said:

"The pros would clobber 'em about 135 to 85."

Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Ambassador Xuan Thuy said today President Johnson "still has enough time and power" to open the way to a Vietnamese peace by halting attacks on North Vietnam.
Hanoi's chief delegate spoke at the 25th session of the peace conference. But the meeting ended with U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman telling newsmen the American position has in no way been changed and that today "we made no progress at all."
Harriman told Thuy the United States is willing "to move far and fast" toward peace the minute "your government gives us reason to believe it is also prepared to do so."
The American professed growing concern over what he called "Hanoi's intransigence" in the conference—an attitude he suggested that arises from "a misguided belief it can gain its ends in South Vietnam through military force."
Harriman said he is worried too by Hanoi's failure to accept America's assurances that its aims in Southeast Asia are strictly limited.

"We know that Hanoi is being provided with misinformation from its commanders on the battlefields of South Vietnam," he went on. "It would be tragic if Hanoi's strategic estimate were not based on fact."
Thuy, who spoke first, said "many American senators, politicians and other personalities" recently had called for an unconditional bomb halt.
"If President Johnson really wants peacefully to solve the Vietnam problem he still has enough time and power now to do so, so as to open the way to a just settlement of the Vietnam problem, a settlement that would be beneficial to the Vietnamese people, the American people and world peace," he said.
Before going into the meeting, Harriman in talks with reporters had called on North Vietnam to show some sign of a serious wish to scale down the war and begin "fruitful peace talks."

Columbia Vote Rejects Tax

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (AP) — Columbia County residents rejected Tuesday a proposed one mill amendment 49 tax designed to produce revenue for the establishment of industrial sites in the county.

Letters To The Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Address letters to: Editor The Star, P. O. Box 648, Hope, Ark. 71801.
All letters must be signed, with address, so you are identified to the newspaper staff, but if the character of the letter permits we will allow use of a pen-name in the publication, in which case you should add "Citizen," or some other word below your real name and address.
Pen-names are permitted when a letter deals only with issues. Direct attacks upon public officials, however, must bear the writer's name for publication.

THE "DRY" SIDE

Editor The Star: Perhaps next year someone can circulate a petition calling for a vote on the preachers. Then they can question their legal rights, interpretive abilities and moral concern. That would be next year. This year the issue is the legal sale of alcohol. The issue we face is whether taverns on our highways will build a fine community; whether the increased advertising that comes with legal stores will cut down on consumption; whether we will sacrifice the health and safety of our young people for a little supposed liquor tax revenue.

So far, the only issue the "wets" have come out on is that the preachers are "all wet." The citizens of our county deserve the best. If the "wets" can defend their position that liquor stores and beer joints build fine communities, let them speak. If they can show that legal control will stop bootleggers, let them show it. If they can verify the claim that we will receive an increase in tax revenue over added police costs, insurance costs, lives lost, let them verify it. Perhaps the reason they don't do this is because the "wets" know that these things are not true. They have never proven out where a county went "wet" and it is doubtful if they will prove true here either.
To bring more liquor into the county and give it public sanction will not help but it will hinder. If we legalize there will be billboards, newspaper ads, radio jingles, store front displays and printed handbills. Increased exposure means increased consumption. Increased consumption means increased drinking, drunkenness, accidents, deaths and crime. To put a person in a store with a license does not make him obey the law. He will be as quick to sell to youth as a bootlegger. If not, a bootlegger will just get it easier and sell it to the youth. All we vote for if we vote "wet" is increased drinking, meaning more crime, death, bad debts, immorality and personal problems. Abraham Lincoln once said, "Liquor has many defenders, but no defense." The issues are over the sale of liquor, not the role of the preacher in the struggle. I hope the voters will face the central issue and not the side tracks that the "wets" advance. I know that the citizens of our community will not be guilty of voting for increased crime, death on the highways, more consumption of liquor by our youth. If the "wets" can show that these facts are not true (each can be verified) let them do so. Until then, however, let Hempstead county voters vote to remain "dry."

Rocket Rolls Toward the Launching Pad

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A mammoth Saturn 5 rocket that may hurl men around the moon in December rolls to a launch pad today as preparations move flawlessly toward Friday's launching of the three Apollo 7 astronauts on an earth orbit voyage.
With the Apollo 8 spaceship perched on top, the 363-foot rocket makes the eight-hour, 3.5-mile trip to launch pad in an upright position aboard a huge tractor-like transporter called a crawler.

The Apollo 8 crew—Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders —were among those planning to witness the roll-out.

The astronauts' hopes of flying Apollo 8 into orbit around the moon depend on the results of Apollo 7, which is scheduled to ride a smaller Saturn 1B rocket into earth orbit at 11 a.m. EDT Friday.

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Elsey and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham are to check out all spacecraft systems as they race around the globe for 11 days in the Apollo 7 ship.

If they demonstrate conclusively that the Apollo craft can safely carry men a quarter-of-

Squirrel Hunting

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) — V. F. Whaley, 52, of Grubbs (Jackson County) was shot and killed Monday while hunting squirrels with his son near Grubbs.

Sheriff Ralph Henderson said Whaley was accidentally shot in the back by his teen-aged son.

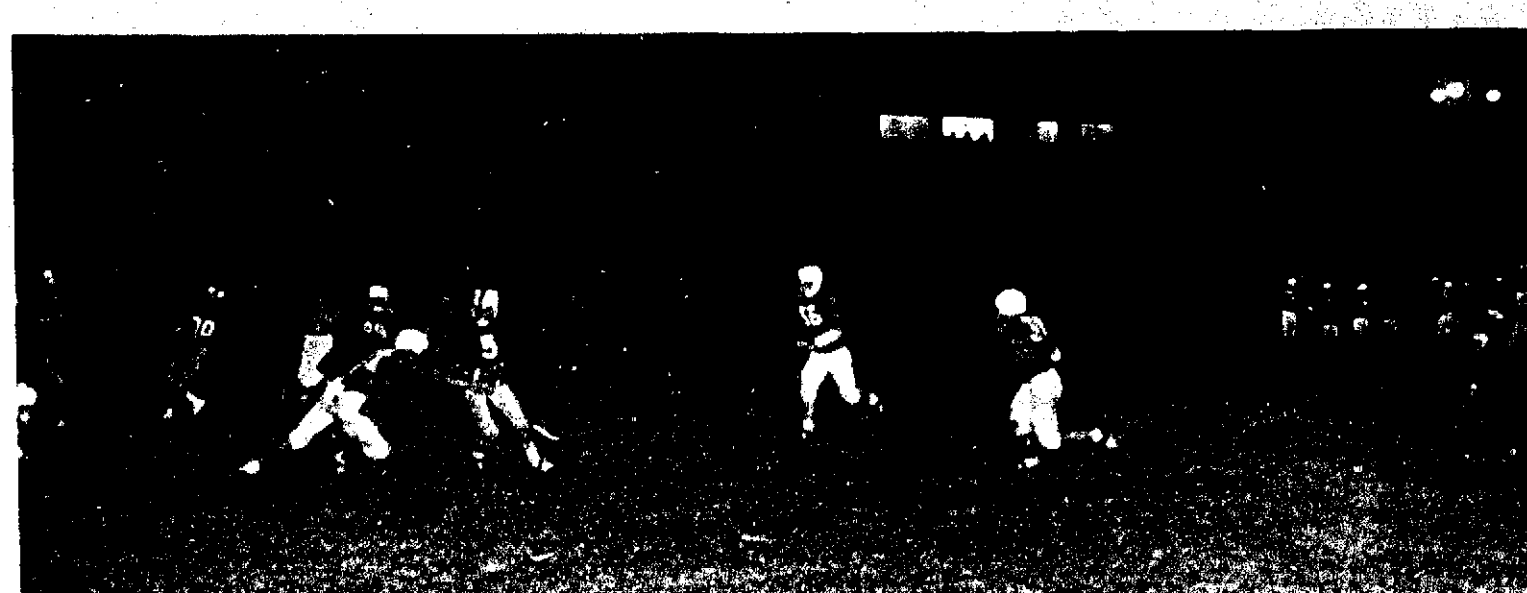

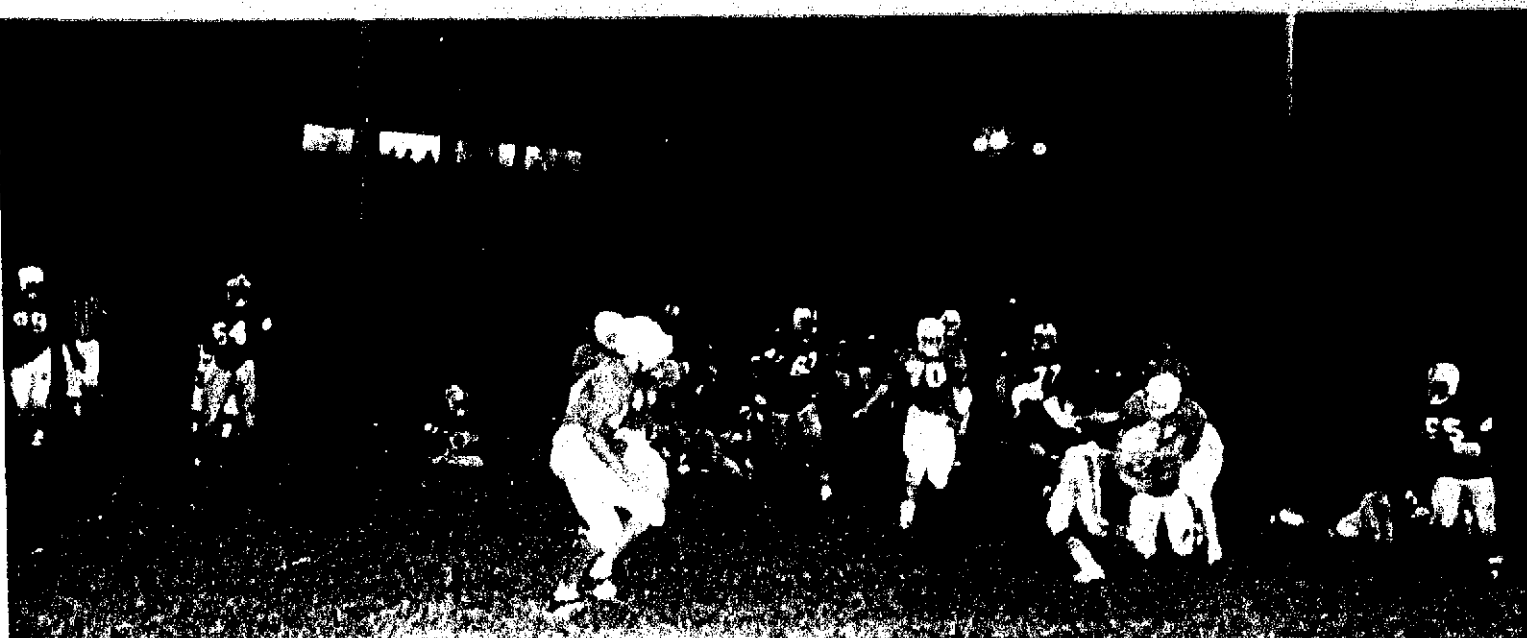

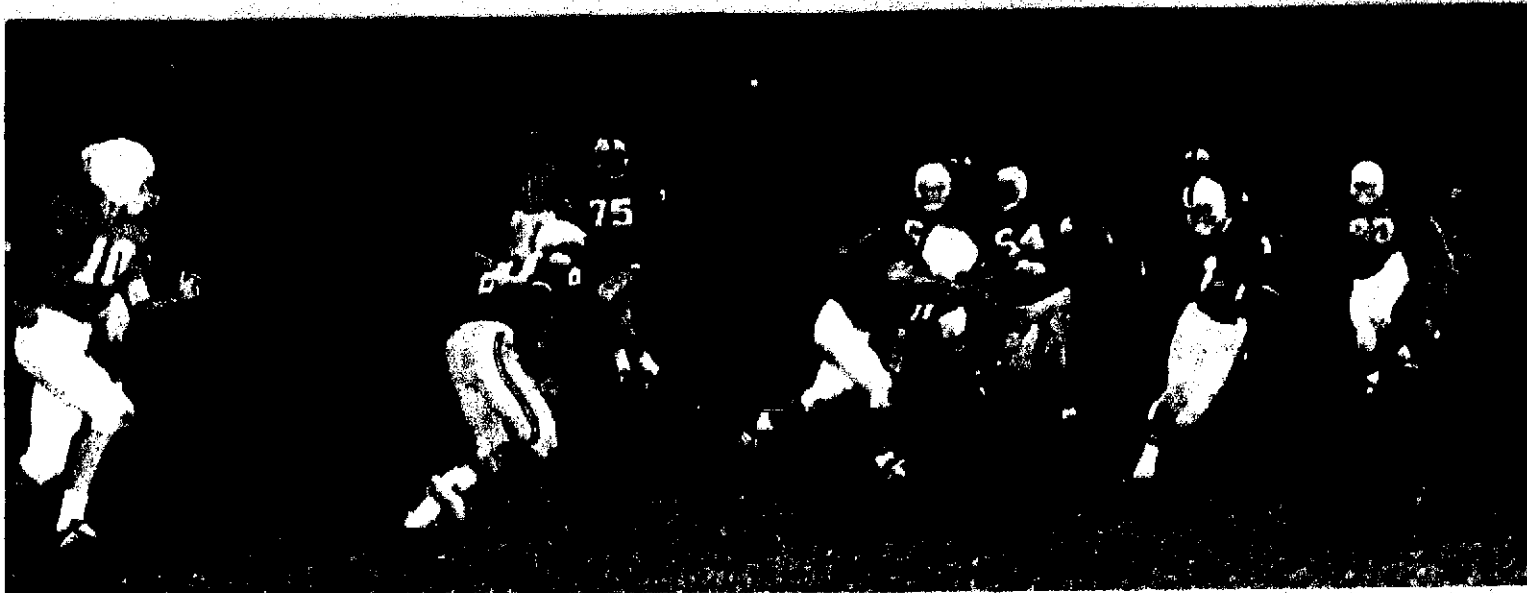

Raising Money for Wallace

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Walter Caruth, chairman of the American Independent party in Arkansas, says a Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams will speak at a fund-raising dinner for George C. Wallace Oct. 14 at Pine Bluff.

ALL THE RUNNING, jumping, throwing, etc., is for this, the Olympic medal, which will be sought by the world's best athletes when they converge on Mexico City for the 19th Olympiad, Oct. 12-27. The design for the gold, silver and bronze medals (first, second and third places, respectively) appeared first for the 1928 games in Amsterdam. The 19th Olympiad will make only one change—the lettering style corresponds to the Mexico '68 logo. Attached to the medal is a plaque identifying the sport in which that medal was won (in this case, sailing). Front of the medal is at left.

For Representative
JAMES E. PRUDEN JR.

it is not suited to all victims of this disease. You should find a surgeon in whom you have confidence and let him decide what method of treatment is best for you. Anyone who does not have a surgeon, dermatologist or any other type of doctor he feels he

Q—A friend was told by a

A—This is a form of neu-chiatric treatment. Cure is possible but often difficult.

DESERTED BEACH is lonely now, but once bristled with armament. During the World War II occupation of Denmark, German forces built fortifications along the entire west coast of the Danish mainland. Since the allied invasion did not take place there, these often-huge concrete constructions were of little use. Although the heavy cannon bases and pillboxes are sinking gradually into the sand, the Danish Bureau of Reclamation has made many of them national monuments. Shown is a section of coastline near Klimstrand, North Jutland.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Most False Pregnancies
Are Form of Hysteria

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

The most unusual example of the power of mind over matter is the false pregnancy.
A woman who is firmly but falsely convinced that she is pregnant may cease to menstruate, suffer morning sickness, gain weight and develop a protruding abdomen. Changes may also occur in her breasts and the rumblings in her intestines may be interpreted as signs of life in a fetus.

In some women, this false assumption may be based on an overpowering desire for a baby and in others it may stem from an equally strong fear of being pregnant. Sometimes even the woman's doctor is fooled, but with the use of modern laboratory tests for pregnancy this is unlikely.
The earlier a false pregnancy is correctly diagnosed the better for all concerned.

Some women, when they learn that they are not pregnant after all, start to menstruate the next day. Their other signs of pregnancy also disappear promptly. False pregnancy is believed to be a form of hysteria and in some highly suggestible women it may even occur a second or third time unless the underlying emotional disturbance is discovered and eliminated.

House Locked on Equal Time Battle

By EDMOND LEBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House fought and muddled its way through almost 20 hours of delaying tactics before taking up today a bill to facilitate a Hubert H. Humphrey-Richard M. Nixon-George C. Wallace television debate.

Records and precedents fell like tenpins during the continuous day-and-night struggle between Democrats bent on passing the bill and Republicans staging the House equivalent of a filibuster.

For the last 2½ hours of preliminaries, members were physically locked in the House chamber by majority vote—the first such instance, veteran members said, in more than 50 years.

The idea was to block the favorite Republican delaying tactics—to partly empty the chamber and then force one time-consuming roll call after another to establish a quorum.

Before the motion to consider the bill could be called up there were 36 roll calls—by a wide margin a record for one continuous session. Thereafter Republicans continued to find ways to force roll calls, each consuming about half an hour.

The Democrats had charged filibustering Republicans with trying to prevent the presidential debate and at the same time shield their candidate from blame for ducking the encounter.

The bill Democrats support would allow networks to arrange the debate without giving equal time to numerous minor candidates.

Republican members raised a storm of protest over the locked doors.

Some said it was an illegal use of powers under the House rules and Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, said the restriction on the freedom of the members violated their constitutional rights.

House Speaker John W. McCormack said he was bound by the majority vote and insisted that the doors would remain locked until the business before the House was completed.

Unemployment Rate Edges Up Some

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged up slightly last month to 3.6 per cent of the civilian labor force, while the total of Americans working dropped 1.5 million, about the expected September decline, the government said today.

The jobless rate was up one-tenth of one per cent from the post-Korean War low of 3.5 per cent in 1954.

Indian Slayer Eludes Searchers, Own Kin to Track Him Down

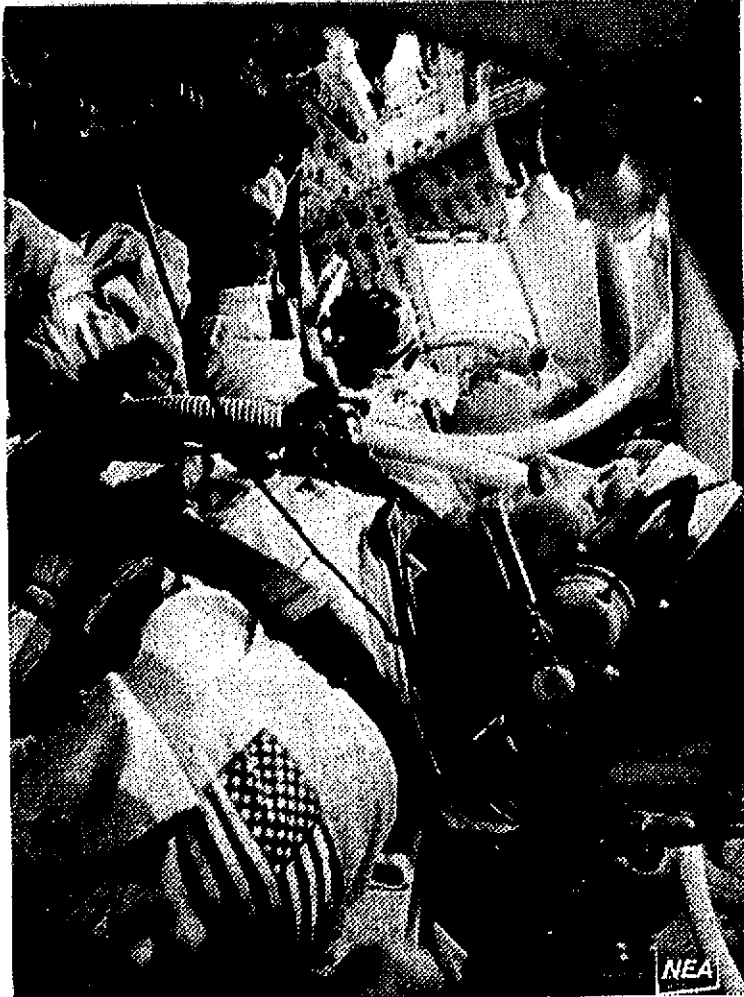

TISHOMINGO, Okla. (AP) — Loy Factor has eluded hundreds of searchers for eight days in the timbered hills of southeastern Oklahoma, but today he is being tracked by a posse of lawmen and his own relatives.

Male members of the family took to the roadless hills Tuesday after hundreds of searchers, bloodhounds and even airplanes had failed for seven days to find any trace of the 43-year-old one-legged war veteran, and the frail, 4-year-old son he took with him.

"They're Chickasaw. They know the country as well as he knows the country," said Johnson County Sheriff Herman Ford, who had led the earlier search efforts.

The brothers and cousins entered the search after McElroy Factor of Dallas, a brother of the hunted man, came to Tishomingo Tuesday and began gathering the relatives for a conference that lasted until dawn.

Fear for the little boy was as strong as concern for Factor,

Crank Warned to Tell Details of Family on Legislative Payrolls

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller says he will reveal the details about employment of members of Marlon Crank's family on legislative payrolls if his Democratic opponent doesn't do so first.

Rockefeller made the statement Tuesday night at one of his regional rallies. He said Crank should detail the amount of money paid Crank's wife and children, the number of days they worked and their ages when they were involved.

"If he explains it as the record shows it, I won't have to do it for him," Rockefeller told an enthusiastic audience of several thousand. "But if he doesn't, I will."

Crank said Sunday he wanted the public to know members of his family had been on the legislative payroll. He said he was making the statement because he understood Rockefeller was about to attack him in this area.

Crank did not say how much his family members had received, but he did say his wife had worked as a clerk in the Arkansas House and several of his children had worked either as clerks or pages.

Rockefeller said Crank's contention that the state had not progressed during the past 21 months was erroneous. He said he had halted flagrant gambling at Hot Springs, cleaned up the Insurance Department, put into action many proposals suggested by the Governmental Efficiency Study Commission and humanized the state penitentiary.

Rockefeller once again denied that his administration had wasted huge surpluses as Crank claims. He said the money Crank refers to was unexpended balances.

The governor also said a tax increase is necessary for progress in Arkansas.

"My opponent talks about priorities," he said. "I talk to you about realities. We will bring to you a program we think you want. Then it's up to you to tell your legislators how much of it you want to support."

Rockefeller was questioned earlier Tuesday about a statement he made last week.

Candidate's Daughter, 11, on Payroll

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Elizabeth Crank, 11-year-old daughter of Democratic gubernatorial nominee Marlon H. Crank, earned $100 for a week's work three years ago, according to a 1965 legislative payroll.

A copy of the payroll in the state auditor's office shows Elizabeth, who was eight at the time, was a House clerk from May 24-28. The records show she received $100 before tax deductions for the period.

The records also show that she drew $140, before tax deductions, for the May 29-June 4 pay period of the same year.

Crank said at Hot Springs that he could not recall the details of his daughter's legislative job. Crank said Sunday that several members of his family had been on the legislative payrolls. He said he made the statement "so the Republicans can't make a big fuss about me putting my family on the state payroll."

The records also show that Elizabeth was listed on the House payroll as a page in 1963 and part of 1965. The positions of clerk and page are usually reserved for the family members of friends of legislators.

Rep. Putman to Wed Today

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Wright Putman, 75, D-Tex., marries Mrs. Pauline Tucker, 71, today in Texarkana. His Washington office said the wedding takes place at 5:30 p.m.

"She and I went together for a couple of years when I was 21 and she was 17. Then she married and I married, had children and grandchildren. Now she's a widow and I'm a widower," Putman said.

Putman, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, has been in Congress since 1929. His wife died 16 months ago. Mrs. Tucker is the widow of Ben Tucker of Texarkana, who died six years ago.

McCarthy Still Gun Control Measure Refuses to Back HHH

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has again rejected overtures that he support Democratic nominee Hubert H. Humphrey's presidential campaign and close ranks in the party.

The Minnesota senator, in his first major political speech since he lost the nomination to Humphrey in August, said Tuesday night the call for party unity was no more acceptable to him now than when he entered the presidential race a year ago.

But he left the door open for Humphrey to possibly obtain his support before the November election. McCarthy listed three positions he said were crucial to him and his supporters, and indicated he hoped the vice president would adopt them.

McCarthy spoke at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner for New York Democratic senatorial nominee Paul O'Dwyer, a Vietnam war critic who has refused to endorse Humphrey.

A three-minute standing ovation greeted McCarthy when he mounted the dais before the 1,400 persons packing the grand ballroom of the New York Hilton. Then later, as he rose to speak, chants of "We want Gene, we want Gene" interrupted him.

His fingers flicked the V-for-victory sign he used steadily through the nomination campaign, and again he was wildly applauded.

He said he began his campaign last fall more "to raise issues than to save or divide the Democratic party."

"We did not," he said, "raise these issues to gain control... to win office."

Still, McCarthy said, "the call goes out for party unity, just as it did a year ago."

"It was not acceptable then, and it's not any more acceptable today."

The audience cheered. McCarthy then listed the three conditions he thought should be met to change the direction of the Democratic party: a shift in Vietnam war policy, a restructuring of the draft system and of the party machinery.

On Vietnam, McCarthy said, promises to stop the bombing of the north, as Humphrey has

Illegal Hunt Charged to G&F Officers

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Fourteen persons, including the president of the Arkansas Wildlife Federal and two wildlife officers of the state Game and Fish Commission, were charged in separate cases Monday with illegally hunting doves.

Robert Apple of Dardanelle, president of the federation, and Adrian Harrington of Dardanelle, a motel owner, were charged in Russellville Municipal Court with hunting doves Sept. 1 at the Holla Bend National Wildlife Refuge, a closed area on the Arkansas River.

W. H. Corpior of Biscoe and Troy Staggs of Brinkley, game and fish wildlife officers, were among 12 persons charged with shooting doves over a baited field on the farm of Raymond Farris.

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller is seeking to oust Farris from the Game and Fish Commission for alleged misconduct.

The other 10 persons accused in the dove case were not identified.

The cases of Apple and Harrington are scheduled for trial Oct. 15. The other 12 persons are to appear tonight at the Biscoe City Hall.

Gun Control Measure Appears to Be Headed for More Trouble

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bill outlawing mail order sales of guns and ammunition, battered for months in House and Senate, faces new danger as it nears what should have been the end of its long trek through Congress.

The measure was approved by a House-Senate conference committee late Tuesday, but the possibility of new trouble was raised when some Senate conferees did not sign the committee report.

There also were doubts that the House would accept the ban on mail order sales of all ammunition, since it had exempted this category when its version of the bill was passed.

The conference bill must be approved again in each chamber before going on to the White House.

Washington Again Hit by Violence

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A neighborhood still bearing the scars of last April's riots was hit by a brief but violent racial disorder Tuesday night after a white policeman killed a Negro man he had stopped for jaywalking.

Helmeted police moved in quickly to saturate the slum neighborhood after word spread rapidly on the streets that a man had been "shot for jaywalking."

Moving from corner to corner in shotgun-armed cars, they fired tear gas to disperse crowds of 250 persons or less in the half-dozen blocks of 14th street just north of U street.

This is an area whose honky-tonk character disappeared behind damage-hiding sheets of plywood in the wake of the riots following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Tuesday's damage was confined to one fire-gutted three-story auto supply store, and two dozen or so smashed windows, notably those in the showroom of an automobile display room.

By midnight, the streets had been cleared of all but a few stone-throwers, but were littered with glass, bricks and concrete easily found in the still uncleared rubble from April, and overturned trash cans. Only one arrest was reported.

There was some discrepancy between eyewitnesses and police, and among eyewitnesses themselves, as to what actually

Troops Move in to Protect Saigon Area

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Paratroopers of the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division have moved into the Saigon military district to protect the city's western flank against enemy attack, military spokesmen announced today.

The announcement followed an order from the South Vietnamese government alerting all government army and air force units in and around Saigon, apparently because of political uneasiness.

Military sources said the U.S. troop shift had been planned some time ago. U.S. spokesmen said the transfer of the 82nd Airborne troops was aimed at realigning some American units and allowing a brigade of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division, now under operational control of the Capital Military Assistance Command, to return to the control of its division.

The 3rd Brigade of the 82nd, about 4,000 men, is replacing the 25th Division brigade. The infantrymen are moving farther out along the jungled approaches northwest of Saigon in the outer ring of defense around Saigon.

The paratroopers, from Fort Bragg, N.C., arrived in South Vietnam last February and have been operating in the northernmost 1st Corps area below the demilitarized zone.

Informal sources said the South Vietnamese alert order was based on an uneasiness caused by the return from exile of former Chief of State Gen. Duong Van Minh, as well as possible developments at the preliminary peace talks in Paris.

But government spokesmen and sources gave varying accounts of what prompted the alert.

A source in President Nguyen Van Thieu's office said it was "a normal precaution we take from time to time." He said it was called because of intelligence of possible Viet Cong action against the Capital.

SAIGON (AP) — A coup aimed against President Nguyen Van Thieu's government was thwarted Tuesday night, a highly reliable government source said today.

The report of the attempted uprising followed by hours a government announcement that South Vietnam's armed forces were on full alert. The official spokesmen claimed no knowledge of a coup attempt.

But the source, who is in a position to know, told The Associated Press: "You can expect a lot of people to be arrested in the next few days, all as a result of the coup attempt that

Thinks Vote for HHH May Be Expensive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Republican Richard M. Nixon says a vote for Democratic presidential opponent Hubert H. Humphrey would be expensive and one for third party candidate George C. Wallace would be the most expensive president we'd ever have, Nixon said Tuesday. And he said protest votes for Wallace would be discarded for a "moment's satisfaction" that would bring no change.

Humphrey, meanwhile, said Nixon is assuming voters are unhappy and desperate enough to elect him. But although there is still a lot wrong with the country, Humphrey said, "Richard Nixon and the Republican party can't fix it."

And Wallace, drawing a crowd police estimated at 20,000 people to Boston Common, pledged anew to repeal the open housing law, restore law and order and end the Vietnam war militarily if peace talks fail.

Nixon claimed in Minneapolis that Humphrey's proposals so far would cost taxpayers $50 billion, and said the campaign is only half over.

Nixon turned his guns on Wallace later in Flint, Mich.

"Do you just want to get something off your chest?" he said, "or do you want to get something done?"

American workers know law enforcement cannot end crime and they know the United States "cannot let other nations treat the American flag like a doormat and hope to establish peace in the world," Nixon said in the auto-producing city.

"But we cannot swing to a third party extreme," he continued, "because that would be just as futile."

Aides described Nixon as believing Wallace's greatest northern strength is in the industrial states of Michigan and Ohio but that the strength is waning.

Humphrey attacked Nixon's anticrime proposals today as sounding "like either a call for the vigilantes or for more talk about crime" and said both Nixon and Wallace spend more time talking about crime than proposing solutions.

"The time for talking is over — we need action," Humphrey said in remarks prepared for a National Association of Retail Druggists session in Boston.

Wallace's running mate, retired Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, told newsmen in Los Angeles Tuesday one reason he joined the third party ticket was that Republican Nixon plans to stack his Cabinet with "left wingers."

LeMay declined to name who he had in mind but said he had been a Nixon supporter until he saw press reports of Nixon's proposed Cabinet "in which every left wing member of the Republican party was listed."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, said in Miami that Wallace represents a "philosophy of violence and overkill." Muskie said Wallace would "make the policeman a member of an occupation force among a hostile people."

Republican vice presidential candidate Spiro T. Agnew accused Muskie of encouraging civil disobedience by saying he did not object to young men burning draft cards if they were prepared to pay the penalty.

Agnew called the stand "reprehensible" and said it should be reversed immediately.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy made his first major political speech Tuesday night since losing the Democratic presidential nomination and declined again to endorse Humphrey.

"The call goes out for party unity, just as it did a year ago," McCarthy said. "It was not acceptable then, and it's not any more acceptable today."

McCarthy spoke at a fundraising dinner in New York for Democratic senatorial candidate Paul O'Dwyer who also has refused to endorse Humphrey.

She Was After Sporting Vote

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Muriel Humphrey took on Jane Muskie and Lady Bird Johnson in a bowling match on the White House lanes. Was she after the sporting vote?

"You betcha — any and all," said Mrs. Humphrey, wife of the Democratic presidential nominee.

The women kept up a running patter during Tuesday's match. "Oh, stay up there," said Mrs. Humphrey as her ball edged toward the gutter and later, "That was an accident," as she made a strike.

"That's the story of my life," Mrs. Muskie joked when she bowled two balls and still had one pin left standing.

Today's hand was played almost 40 years ago. South still winces when reminded of it.

The event was the Life Masters' Individual. This event has long since been relegated to a minor role because the top players don't like to play in it. Somehow or other an individual brings out the worst in everyone. Thus, South's four-heart call was a rather bad bid. Three no-trump would have been far better but in an individual there is a really strong tendency not to let your partner play the dummy.

Anyway, South did bid four hearts and the way the cards lie it should have brought him a top score.

He won the spade lead with dummy's ace and promptly finessed his jack of hearts. If West had risen with the queen he would have collected a spade trick and South would have made five odd. Since the rest of the field was in three no-trump, making four or five, diamonds making six, he would have had his top but West produced the deuce of hearts instead of the queen.

South entered dummy with the ace of diamonds and took a second heart finesse. This time West won the trick. Then West cashed the queen of spades and shifted to his last diamond. South won that trick but the rest of the diamond suit was about as useless as an ice machine at the North Pole. He had to go down two.

Why does South still wince when he is reminded of this hand?

It seems that he congratulated West on his magnificent play. Instead of accepting the accolade, West replied, "Thanks very much but I didn't really make a good play. I was really surprised when I found that I had played the deuce and not the queen on that first heart lead."

Q—The bidding has been.

Wilson, Leader of Rhodesia Plan Talks

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer
GIBRALTAR (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain meets the leader of breakaway Rhodesia's white minority government today in a new effort to persuade him to let the majority Africans rule eventually.

But Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith comes into the meeting, aboard the British assault ship Fearless moored off Gibraltar, committed to preventing African rule "within my lifetime."

Wilson said the talks will be aimed at discovering whether it would be possible to arrive at a settlement of the Rhodesia problem which would be acceptable to both sides.

The alternative, he said on British television before leaving London Tuesday, could be "a lurch into apartheid, into perhaps even a blood bath in Rhodesia."

Smith's government, which represents 220,000 whites in a country of 4 million Africans, declared independence from Britain in November 1965. Britain refused to accept this, saying it would free the colony only when provision is made for majority African rule.

But the British government has been unwilling to enforce its position by sending troops to Rhodesia. Instead, Britain and other nations have applied pressure by halting trade with Rhodesia, pulling it down from prosperity to severe economic stress.

So far, with the aid of the apartheid regime in neighboring

South Africa, Smith's government has survived this pressure and put down African terrorists. Nonnuclear countries signing the treaty would be expected to negotiate agreements with the agency on inspection procedures within their respective borders. No provision is made for inspection within the nuclear powers.

Nuclear Treaty Vote Delay Seems Likely

By ROBERT T. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders have decided not to bring the nuclear nonproliferation treaty to a vote in this session of Congress, informed sources say.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield has not made a public announcement, but he is said to have abandoned any possibility of seeking ratification this year.

The treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons has been in increasing trouble in the Senate since the Soviet Union invaded Czechoslovakia in mid-August.

The pact suffered another major setback Tuesday when Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., whose views on military matters carry great weight with many senators, announced he opposes action on the treaty at this time.

"It has no inspection provisions worthy of the name," Russell said. "It would not protect us at all."

While several senators have advocated delay because of the Soviet intervention in Central Europe, Russell's objections to the terms of the treaty itself could signal long-range difficulties in obtaining Senate approval when the new session of Congress opens next January.

"I am opposed to acting on it until there can be further investigation of its terms," Russell said.

Nuclear nations signing the treaty pledge they will not transfer nuclear weapons or the know-how for making them to nonnuclear countries.

The have-nots agree they will neither seek nor acquire such weapons. Provisions are made for sharing peaceful uses of atomic energy, however.

Feels Demos Are Working as a Team

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer
JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Marlon H. Crank said today that Democrats are challenging Republicans this year "as a team, not of men and women who have been appointed, but a team of men and women who respect one another because of what each has achieved."

Crank, the Democratic party nominee for governor, was the principal speaker as Democratic candidates gathered with about 250 persons at a party breakfast in Jonesboro's magnificent new Indian Mall Shopping Center.

Other candidates also contended that Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller had hand-picked the Republican team.

"Winthrop Rockefeller has puppets and when he pulls the strings the puppets react," said Bill Wells, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell, Secretary of State Kelly Bryant, Auditor Jimmie Jones and Treasurer Nancy Hall sat with Crank at the head table.

Mrs. Betty Fulbright represented her husband, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, and she said, "After 36 years, I can highly recommend that man, Bill Fulbright."

She said that Fulbright's opponent, Charles Bernard Earle, "keeps talking about Bill being in Washington." Then she added, "I'm not sure where he thinks a senator ought to be."

Bill Alexander, candidate for Congress in the 1st District, urged Democrats to pull together because, he said, "There is no way that we can match the advertising volume that our opponents have placed before us."

Crank said that he is finding Republicans around the state who are disenchanted with the Rockefeller administration because their opinions have not been accepted. He said that Purcell's opponent, Jerry K. Thomasson of Arkadelphia, had been told that "if he does not maintain perfect allegiance, he will be out."

The Democratic gubernatorial nominee said that Rockefeller was refusing on the campaign trail to discuss the issues — bond issue, tax increase and operation of penal institutions. "You will hear every kind of smokescreen and side issue in order to avoid discussing those things which are important to Arkansas," Crank said.

He said there have been more prison escapes during the Rockefeller administration than during any other two-year period, and he said, "Good prison reform requires sound administration. Our pardon and parole board should operate with good judgment and respect the feelings of the people."

Then he said that Rockefeller had pardoned or paroled 1,900 convicts and this was 1,000 more than were pardoned or paroled during any previous two years.

Crank said one man was convicted of rape in Pine Bluff and went to prison in April to serve a five-year sentence. He was pardoned in September, Crank said, and this week committed the same crime again.

"This is happening all over the state of Arkansas," Crank said.

Declaring that Rockefeller had tried to take control of the Highway Commission, Crank said he was proud that the state had an independent Highway Commission and that he did not want to control it.

Crank also criticized Rockefeller because the state failed during this biennium to set up a construction fund. He said that the colleges and universities had lost $8 million in federal matching funds because the state failed to provide $4 million in construction money.

Crank said he and the late state Sen. Tom Allen of Brinkley fought eight years ago to establish a permanent state construction fund and that he battled this year to set aside one per cent of general revenues for construction, but that Rockefeller had failed to use the money.

The question resolves, Crank said, to this:

"Do you want a governor who's grown up in the same atmosphere, who understands the language, who can talk with you, who will be there if you need him, who will come to this area if he's needed? Do you want a governor who's got some background and experience and ability to work the legislature, a governor that's concerned about the operation of every single agency and department in this state, and who will know what's going on in those departments?"

Crank said that Democrats were offering to the people "a working governor, a person who knows that only Arkansas people can solve Arkansas problems."

Many of the candidates went downtown after the breakfast for the formal opening of the Democratic county headquarters on Main Street.

Chemicals Eliminate Night Sticks

By HARRY MOSKOW
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — "Since we started using chemical sprays we have practically eliminated the night stick. It's better than hitting a man over the head," says Police Chief Joseph C. Hall of Asheville, N.C.

His endorsement of chemical spray devices was typical on the reaction of police chiefs interviewed today at the 75th annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Police Chief Thomas Cahill of San Francisco, the association's first vice president, said city supervisors there have prohibited police from using chemical agents because of possible eye injuries but "I personally think we should be allowed to use chemical agents under certain conditions." He said he felt pressure spray devices "are a valuable weapon in the control of violence with a minimum of hazard involved."

"Certainly chemical agents are less harmful than shotguns, rifles, clubs or even handcuffs," said Chief Silver Suarez of Springfield, Ill., but he cautioned police should not become careless in their use of such items.

"In the hands of an untrained policeman, the use of a chemical agent could result in a charge of police brutality," Suarez added.

Chief Paul Shaver of Albuquerque, N.M., said there has been "a lot less use of the night stick since the introduction of chemical agents. The men on the beat are very strong in favor of the use of chemical agents."

Chief Elmer A. Briscoe of Reno, Nev., felt "it is a lot more humane than using the night stick or another weapon."

J. Preston Strom, chief of the South Carolina Law Enforcement Division, said one policeman can immobilize four or five people without doing any permanent injury by using a chemical spray device so "it gives the policeman an added sense of security."

Daniel F. McMahon, sheriff of New York's Westchester County, said "there has been no conclusive proof that the use of chemical agents will cause permanent injury. This is a more desirable weapon than being forced to use firearms."

Lloyd Robertson, deputy superintendent of the Arizona Highway Patrol, feels a report by the U.S. surgeon general on the use of chemical agents was taken out of context by critics. The report said there was a need for additional research on the use of chemical agents.

The president of the association, Chief Leonard G. Lawrence of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, said chemical devices are the "most humane way to handle disorders."

However, he said, the association believes an "exhaustive investigation is needed to determine the best chemical to use."

Murder Trial Underway for Third Time

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — The third trial of Billy Frank Gross, who is charged with first-degree murder, continued Tuesday in Faulkner County Circuit Court with the state calling nine witnesses.

Gross, 30, is charged in the mutilation slaying of Frank Adam Birch, 69, of Hattiesville (Conway County). The slaying occurred in Birch's two-room shack in September 1963.

Gross' first trial resulted in a conviction but U.S. District Court overturned the verdict. The second trial was declared a mistrial after one of Gross' attorneys collapsed and died of a heart attack during the case.

Mrs. Dollie Gean Combs testified Tuesday that Gross beat Birch with a stick of stove wood. The Rev. O.D. Dill of Hattiesville, one of two defense witnesses, said, however, that he saw Birch alive the morning after the alleged attack.

Gross was arrested in Lubbock, Tex., on a warrant charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The case is being heard by Circuit Court Judge Henry B. Means of Malvern. Circuit Judge Russell Roberts of Conway excused himself because he had presided at the second attempt to try Gross.

FELLOW DEMOCRATS:

I am helping Winthrop Rockefeller to be re-elected Governor because I believe this is the only way that conservative-minded Democrats such as I am can have a real chance to take charge of the Democratic Party and make it serve the people instead of selfish interests.

I traveled extensively throughout my congressional district in my race for Congress, and I found thousands of Democrats who feel as I do... that the only way we can have a true voice in our own Party is to rid it, once and for all, of "old guard" politicians who are using the Party for their own selfish purposes.

These men have been out of power for two years, and in that time we have seen conservative strength grow to the extent that Mrs. Virginia Johnson made it to the run-off with Governor Rockefeller's opponent. In my opinion, that is real progress toward a strong conservative voice in our Party. But it is not enough.

The "old guard" is desperately trying now to win the governor's office, and thus slam the door on all those who seek to make the party a party of the people.

If we let the "old guard" win, we have simply locked ourselves out and won't regain strength in our Party for many years.

I call upon all conservative-minded Democrats to join me in defeating the "old guard" politicians in 1968, so that we can win back our Party and perhaps the governorship in 1970.

I intend to campaign as actively as my dental practice will permit from now until election day, and I urge my friends to do the same to Re-Elect Governor Rockefeller.
